

PERSONAL INFORMATION

 Claire ARISTON

Current position

Policy Officer for Education and Vocational Training
French Ministry of Education, Higher Education and Research

Claire Ariston is a policy officer for education and vocational training at the General Secretary, in the Department for the European Union and Multilateral Organisations within the French ministry of education, higher education and research. She is responsible for relations with the European Union and the OECD on Vocational Education and Training (VET). In this role, she represents France on European expert groups, contributes to European and international reports, and promotes French initiatives on VET. She is also Board member (alternate) of the ETF and French representative to the Advisory Committee on Vocational Training and member of the Europass Advisory Group.

Claire Ariston has extensive experience in national and international project management, training system design, and institutional relations, gained through various senior and leadership positions within the French Ministry of education, higher education and research and others organisations.

She holds an MBA from HEC Montréal (Canada) in international marketing and management, and additional academic training in France, the Netherlands and the United States.